ROBERT BAILEY, Grenfell Campus, Memorial University
Some Seidel switching on 136 vertices

There are exactly four strongly regular graphs on 136 vertices (not including complements) where the automorphism group acts primitively on the vertex set. Three of these belong to well-known infinite families, but one is rather more mysterious; however, this graph turns out to be related to the others by Seidel switching. In this talk, we will explore this.