
AMENDA CHOW, York University
A New Sense of Community

Whether there are twenty or two hundred students in a class, maintaining a sense of community in the switch from in-person to virtual classrooms is not easy. I will present some ideas I have tried to create this sense of community and give some reflections on the impact this had on my students and myself.