
ILIA BINDER, University of Toronto

Computational complexity of conformal maps

We present a memory-efficient algorithm for computing conformal maps. We also discuss the theoretical lower bounds on the computational complexity of the conformal maps to the domains with computable boundaries.

The results were obtained in a joint work with Mark Braverman (University of Toronto) and Michael Yampolsky (University of Toronto).