
ALI JAVAME, University of Manitoba

Role of Pap Screening on HPV Transmission Dynamics

Human papillomavirus (HPV), a major sexually-transmitted disease, is known to be the causative agent of cervical cancer (in addition to causing many other cancers in both males and females). Each year, 500,000 women develop cervical cancer (and about 50