
GERARDO CHOWELL, Georgia State University

Forecasting the COVID-19 pandemic using ensemble modeling approaches

The ongoing COVID-19 pandemic presents with an unprecedented opportunity to evaluate the performance of mathematical modeling frameworks for forecasting the trajectory of the pandemic at different spatial and temporal scales. I will discuss progress on developing new ensemble modeling approaches that can outperform individual models in short-term forecasts without substantially increasing model complexity.