ANDREA BENEDETTI, McGill University
Individual participant data meta analyses

In this presentation, I will describe the DEPRESSD project, an individual participant data meta analysis (IPDMA) that aims to investigate the diagnostic accuracy of the most common depression screening tools. I will discuss selective cutoff reporting and how IPDMA allowed us to overcome this problem, as well as other approaches to the problem.