
KEITH TAYLOR, Dalhousie University, Halifax, NS

Mathematics: The Sacred-Profane Dichotomy

This talk will explore the contrasting ways in which mathematics is viewed by various constituencies. There is often a disconnect between what mathematicians believe should be core curricular material and what the rest of the university feels is most important. The key to this disconnect is in the very meaning of the word “mathematics”.