

---

WARREN CODE, University of British Columbia

"Clicker" use in first year calculus

I will report on recent use of whole class voting (using "clickers") in first year calculus courses by instructors of varying experience levels in our department. I will describe some of the resources used, benefits to learning (those perceived, expected and/or surprising), and common concerns associated with this instructional mode.