
DALE ROLFSEN, UBC

Topology and ordering groups

Group theory and topology are old companions, but recently the special (but still very large) class of groups which have invariant orderings has made unexpected contributions to topology. There are applications in the other direction as well. This talk will discuss those interactions, including some new results and conjectures.