

---

JOSEPH TURNBULL, King's University College at the University of Western Ontario

Creating classroom learning communities

Several techniques for promoting student engagement and active learning will be discussed, centered on the marriage between collaborative learning and individual assessment in first-year mathematics courses. These strategies include several forms of collaborative quiz preparation, mathematics video library projects, and 'teaching through assessment' of in-class tasks.