
SARAH PLOSKER, Brandon University

Beadwork as a method of teaching linear algebra

In collaboration with Cathy Mattes of the Department of Visual and Aboriginal Art at Brandon University, we are working on a study that attempts to see if learning traditional beadwork is useful in students' understanding of linear algebra. This talk will focus on background motivation, relationship building, and other information surrounding the process of the study.