
DANNY DYER, Memorial University of Newfoundland

How I spent my Fall semester: experiences with active learning in Calculus I

As part of a project to increase student engagement at Memorial, I taught a revamped version of our standard Calculus I course where I spent approximately half of class time having students work on problems. I will talk about what I did to allow these changes, the outcomes, and the feedback I received from students.