
KELDA SMITH, Halifax Grammar School
Activating Thought in a Secondary Math Class

The intention is to describe the development and implementation of a problem-based active learning curriculum in a Grade Nine math class at a small private school in Halifax. Issues encountered and addressed are discussed, as are the effects on student engagement and learning.