
PAVEL WINTERNITZ, Universite de Montreal

Symmetry preserving discretization of ordinary differential equations

We show how one can approximate an Ordinary Differential Equation by a Difference System that has the same Lie point symmetry group as the original ODE. Such a discretization has many advantages over standard discretizations. In particular it provides numerical solutions that are qualitatively better, specially in the neighborhood of singularities.