
REESE JOHNSTON, University of Wisconsin - Madison

Complexity of binary trees of uncountable height

In the context of ω_1 -computability, we investigate the complexity of paths through computable binary trees of height ω_1 . In particular, I will present a computable binary tree of countable width in which the unique path is not computable.