
BERNARDO GALVAO-SOUSA, University of Toronto

Proofs with Clickers

Clickers are a convenient platform for interacting with the large student audience in the classroom. Traditionally, such tools were reserved to perform quick and easy computations and thus engage the audience. I will show how this technology can be adapted to an "Introduction to proofs" course - a new setting for clickers. I will give examples of how clickers can help students understand proof techniques better and motivate students to learn.