

---

MICHAEL YAMPOLSKY, University of Toronto

Complexity of attractors of real quadratic polynomials

We construct examples of quadratic maps of the interval with Cantor attractors which are effectively computable, but have arbitrarily high computational complexity. The construction uses tools of parabolic implosion and renormalization. This is a joint work with Cristobal Rojas.