
ZHISHENG SHUAI, University of Central Florida

Graph Design and Reduction to Global Lyapunov Functions in Population Dynamics

The graph-theoretic approach has become a standard method to construct global Lyapunov functions for large-scale differential equation systems. Appropriate graph/network design and reduction is the key in the successful application of the approach. We illustrate these graph/network techniques using various biological models in the literature.