STEPHEN VAVASIS, University of Waterloo
Relationships among first-order methods for minimization of strongly convex functions

We exhibit some unifying relationships among three well-known first-order methods for minimization of strongly convex functions, namely, conjugate gradient, accelerated gradient, and geometric descent. The new relationships lead to potentially new and faster algorithms for this class of problems. Parts of this talk represent joint work with S. Karimi.